

The Autumn Half-term Holiday

Last Saturday was Kate's first day of the Autumn half-term holiday. Kate played on the trampoline in her garden. She jumped and jumped and tried to turn a somersault.

Last Sunday Kate's three sisters played with soapy water.
It was a warm day.
They washed the doll's tea-set and enjoyed playing with the bubbles.

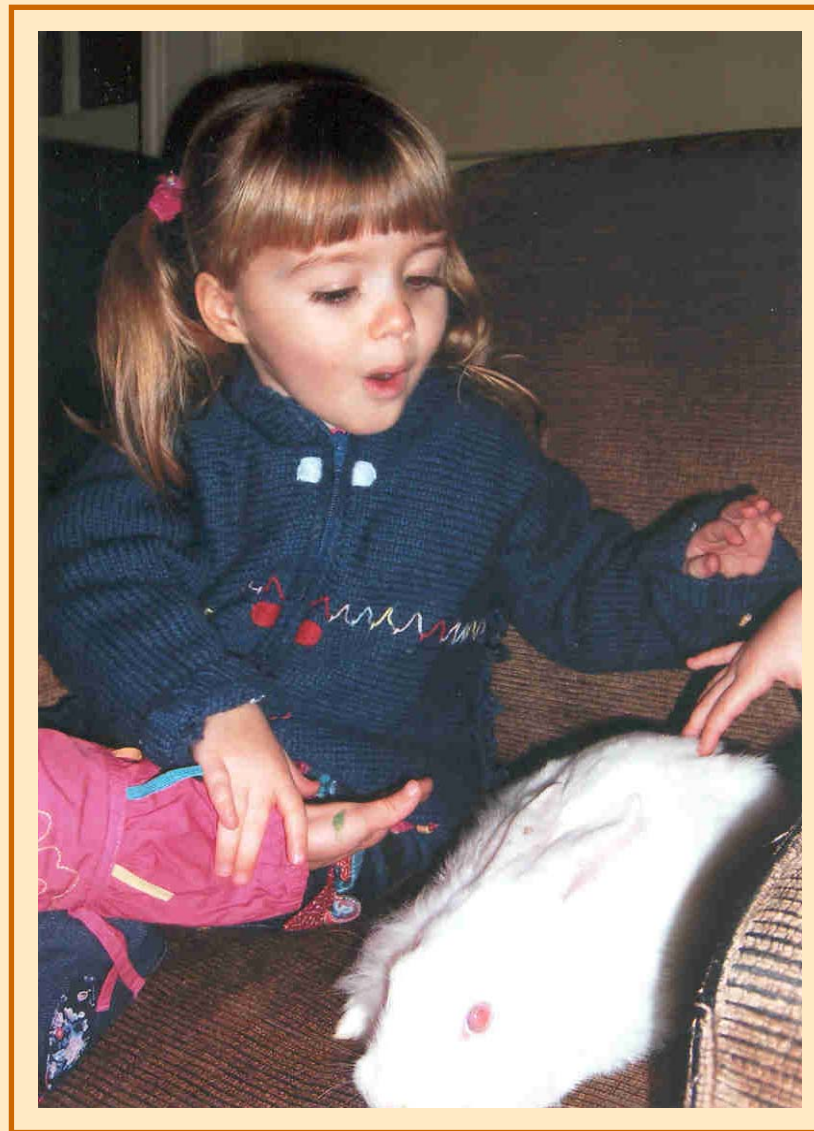

On Monday the family went to the beach.
Kate and Eliza fetched their spades.
They wanted to dig a hole in the damp sand.

Lucy played with the watering-cans.
She wore her jumper and boots because it was cold.

On Tuesday the family visited a farm and Kate held a chick. The chick was warm and very soft in her hands.

Alice sat next to a white rabbit.
Her sisters gently stroked the rabbit's soft fur..

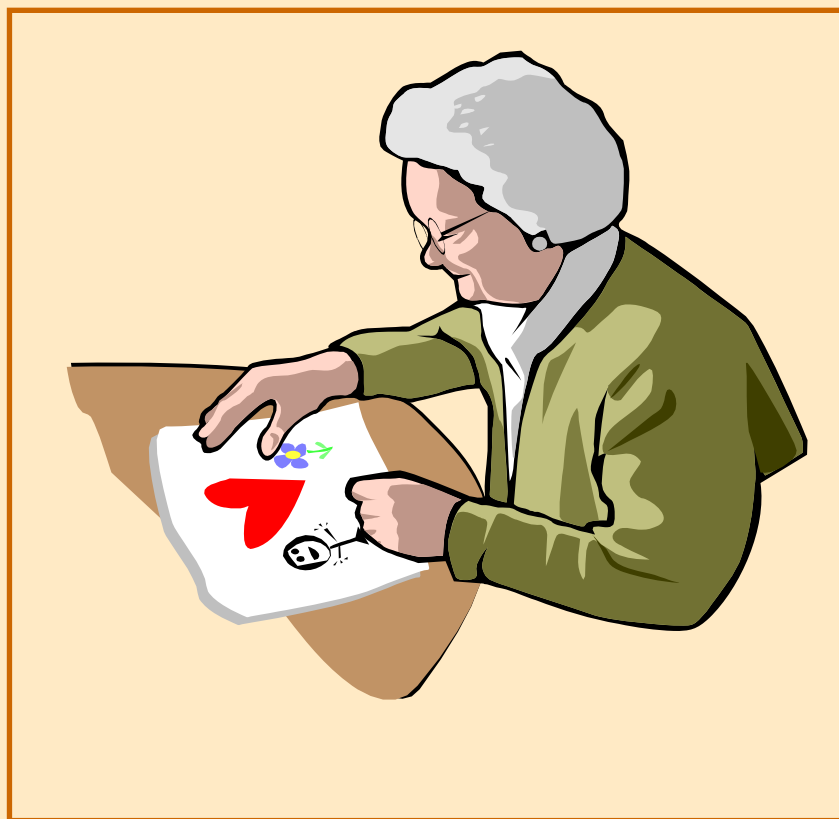

Today is Wednesday and the four girls are cleaning the gate. They are using paint-brushes and water. The wood changes colour to a darker brown when it is wet.

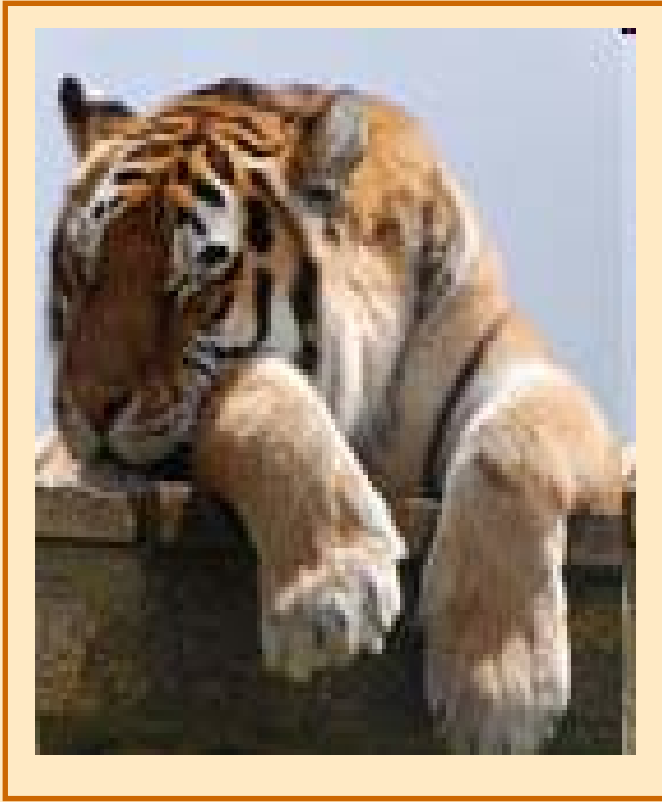

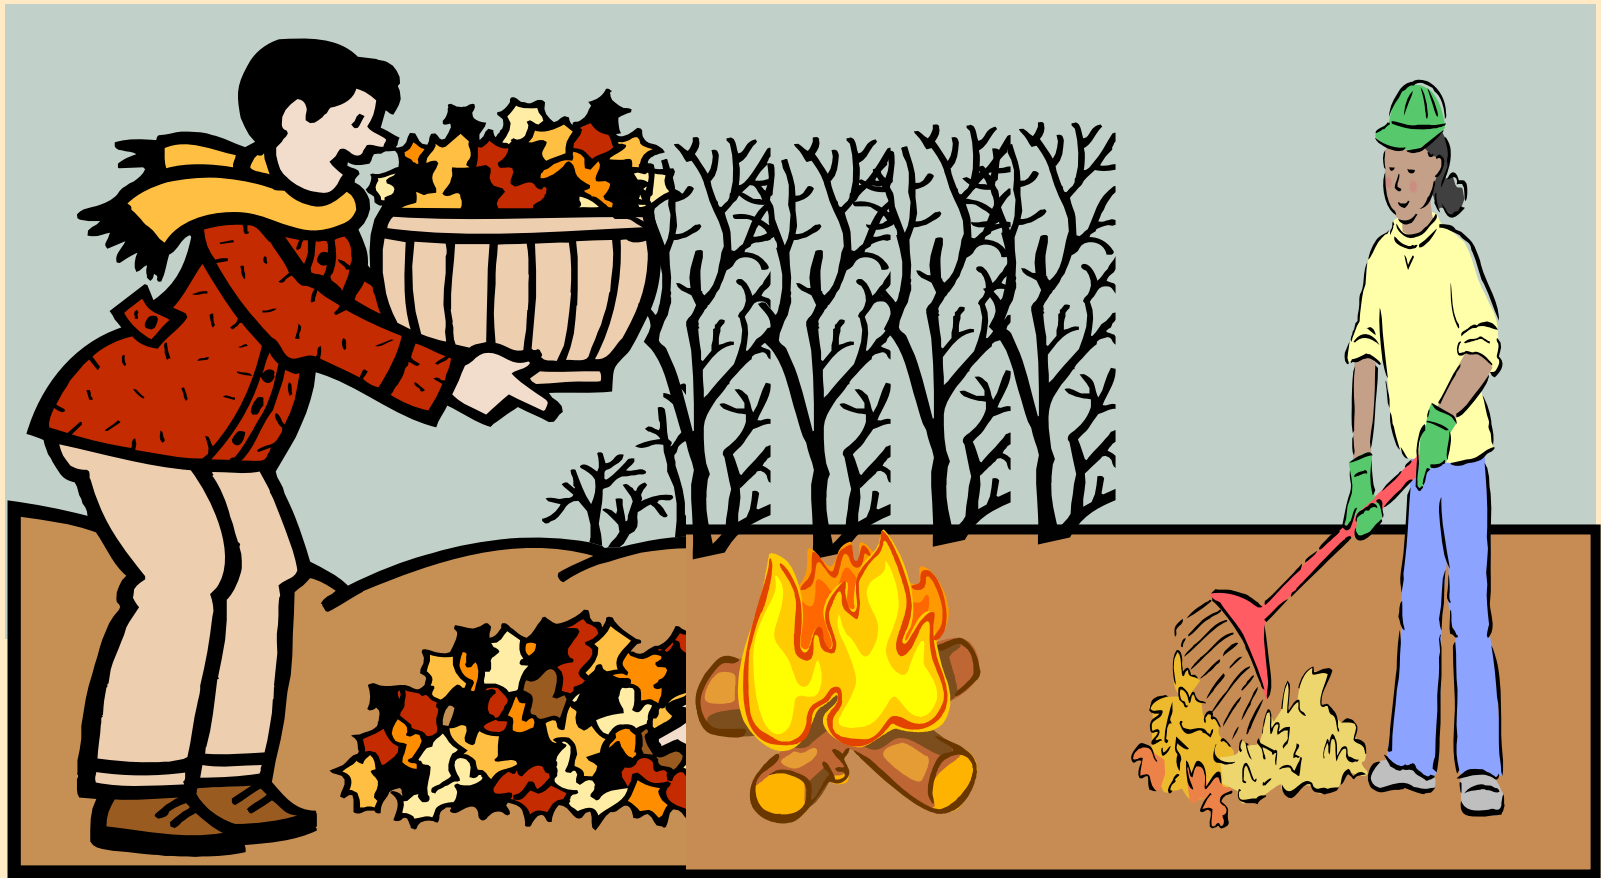

Tomorrow will be Thursday.
The family will drive to the Natural History Museum in London.
They want to see the skeleton of a dinosaur called Tyrannosaurus Rex.

On Friday the family will visit Granny. It will be Granny's birthday and they will give her the birthday cards they have made for her.

On Saturday the family will go to see the animals in London Zoo.
They will try to see the fish in the aquarium too.

On Sunday the family will stay at home. If it is not raining Mum will rake the leaves and Dad will make a bonfire in the garden. The next day will be Monday and Kate will go back to school again. The half-term holiday will be finished.

The End
